

EXTENSION PROGRAMS

Agriculture and Forestry
 Community Leadership
 Economic Development
 Environmental Sciences
 Family and Consumer Sciences
 4-H Youth Development
 Natural Resources

Are Your Children in the MIDDLE
 of Your Conflict or Divorce?

Visitation Do's and Don'ts

For both parents and children, visitation is critical to maintaining a sense of connectedness both during and after a divorce. But, in the early stages of family restructuring and co-parenting, it is frequently a source of conflict.

If former spouses want revenge, finding ways to spoil a visitation is easy. If they want to help their children through a difficult transition, they will find ways to make visitation successful.

For visitation to work, both parents need to accept and acknowledge that their children have two homes, one with their father and one with their mother. Parents need to make sure children are safe and comfortable in both places, even if they don't spend equal time there. They need to help make the transition from one home to the other smooth and calm. They also need to make sure they are consistent in rules and discipline.

Tips for Smooth Visitations

- ▶ Be as flexible as possible with schedules.
- ▶ Treat your former spouse with respect.
- ▶ Help children feel safe and comfortable in both homes.
- ▶ Develop routines to give children a sense of security.
- ▶ Maintain open communication lines with your former spouse.
- ▶ Don't question your children's loyalty.
- ▶ Help make the transition from one home to the other smooth and calm.

- ▶ Discuss rules and discipline with your former spouse so you are consistent.

Constructive parenting goals

These guidelines are examples of parenting goals that can help children grow into healthy, happy, whole people.

- ▶ Both parents should encourage visitation to help their children grow in positive ways.
- ▶ Children need to know it is OK to love both parents.
- ▶ In general, parents should treat each other with respect for their children's benefit.
- ▶ Each parent should respect the other's child-raising views by trying, when possible, to be consistent. For example, if one parent strongly opposes toy guns for small children, the other should take this into account when buying gifts.
- ▶ Each parent is entitled to know where the children are during visitations. They should also know if the children are left with other people such as babysitters or friends when the other parent is not there.
- ▶ Parents should try to agree on their children's religious education, as well as who is responsible for overseeing it.
- ▶ Parents should tell each other their current addresses and home and work phone numbers. Both parents should realize visitation schedules may change as children age and their needs change.

Are Your Children in the MIDDLE of your Conflict or Divorce?

Visitation Do's and Don'ts

Visitation Do's

These suggestions are strategies parents can use to achieve parenting goals.

Be flexible about visitation schedules.

- ▶ Give the other parent advance notice of changes in your schedule.
- ▶ Remember to give the other parent your vacation schedule in advance.
- ▶ Remember that your children may have plans that could affect your visitation schedule.

Make visitation a normal part of life.

- ▶ Find activities that give you and your children an opportunity to build your relationship. Allow time together without planned activities just to "hang out."
- ▶ Provide a balance between fun and responsibility for your children.
- ▶ Encourage visitation that includes grandparents and extended family.
- ▶ Make sure your children have their own places in your home "even if it is just part of a room" so they feel it is also their home.
- ▶ Help your children meet other kids in your neighborhood so they have friends at both homes.
- ▶ Try to keep a routine schedule to help prepare your children for visitation.
- ▶ Have a checklist of items, such as clothing and toys, that your children need to take on visitations. If the children are old enough, they can help pack.
- ▶ If it's appropriate, allow your children to bring friends along occasionally.
- ▶ Spend individual time with each of your children.

Show respect for your former spouse and concern for your children.

- ▶ Be on time.
- ▶ Inform your former spouse if a new person, such as a babysitter or romantic partner, will be part of the visitation.
- ▶ Share changes in your address, home and work phone numbers, and in your job with your former spouse.

Visitation Don'ts

Some parents use visitation to achieve destructive goals. These are goals based on revenge, such as one parent hurting the other or disrupting his or her life. To achieve those goals, parents may use destructive behaviors that can create a more hostile environment and seriously damage relationships. Destructive strategies can be deeply hurtful to children caught in the middle. Here are tips for avoiding destructive behavior.

Don't refuse to communicate with your former spouse.

- ▶ Don't use your children to relay divorce-related messages on issues such as child support. Those issues should be discussed by adults only.
- ▶ Don't make your children responsible for making, canceling or changing visitation plans. Those are adult responsibilities.
- ▶ Don't use your children to spy on your former spouse.
- ▶ Don't fight with the other parent during drop-off and pick-up times. Deal with important issues when your children cannot overhear.

Don't disrupt your children's relationship with their other parent.

- ▶ Don't make your children feel guilty about spending time with their other parent.
- ▶ Don't use visitation as a reward for good behavior, and don't withhold it as punishment for poor behavior.
- ▶ Don't tell your children you will feel lonely and sad if they visit their other parent.
- ▶ Don't withhold visitation to punish your former spouse for problems such as missed child support payments. Withholding visitation punishes your children, who are not guilty.
- ▶ Don't withhold visitation because you feel your former spouse doesn't deserve to see the children. Unless a parent is a genuine threat, adults and children need to see each other.
- ▶ Don't use false abuse accusations to justify withholding visitation.
- ▶ Don't let activities such as sports and hobbies interfere with the time your children spend with their other parent. Your former spouse can transport the children to those activities if needed and can sometimes participate.

Are Your Children in the MIDDLE of your Conflict or Divorce?

Visitation Do's and Don'ts

- ▶ Don't pressure your children about leaving clothes or toys at the other parent's home. The children need to feel they belong in both places.
- ▶ Don't falsely claim that your children are sick to justify withholding visitation.
- ▶ Don't withhold phone calls to your children from their other parent.
- ▶ Don't put down the other parent's new romantic partner.

Don't allow your anger to affect your relationship with your children.

- ▶ Don't hurt your children by failing to show up for visitation or by being late.

Don't spoil your children by trying to buy their loyalty and love.

- ▶ Don't let your children blackmail you by refusing to visit unless you buy them something.
- ▶ Don't try to bribe your children.
- ▶ Don't feel you need to be your children's buddy for visitations to be successful. Your children need you to be a parent.
- ▶ Don't try to fill every minute of a visit. Allow some down time for routine activities, such as cooking or laundry, or quiet time just to be together.

All of these visitation don'ts undercut children's ability to develop an open and supportive relationship with both parents. One of the best ways to support children involved in a separation or divorce is to do what you can to make visitations go smoothly. Focusing on visitation do's is a first step in helping children adjust.

If you are interested in more information on this and other related topics, please call your local LSU AgCenter parish office. Below is the list of topics in the "Are Your Children in the Middle of Your Conflict or Divorce?" series.

A Child's View of Divorce

The Business of Co-parenting

Coping with Stress and Change

Costs of Raising Children

Custody Issues Today

Dating Issues

Disciplining Children

Friendship and Support

Help! I Feel Overwhelmed

Loss of a Relationship

Managing Income and Expenses

Not Enough Hours in the Day

Separating Your Finances

Sharing Parenting

Talking with Your Children

Talking with Your Children About Money

Talking with Your Children -- Communicating

Within Your Family: Active Listening

Visitation Do's and Don'ts

References

Oesterreich, L. (1996). "Visitation Do's and Don'ts." Divorce Matters. (ISU Publication No. PM-1641) The Iowa State University Extension Service.

Wallerstein, J.S. & Kelly, J.B. (1980). Surviving the Breakup: How Children and Parents Cope With Divorce. Basic Books.

Wallerstein, J.S. & Blakeslee, S. (1990). Second Chances: Men, Women and Children A Decade After Divorce - Who Wins, Who Loses - and Why. New York: Ticknor & Fields,

Diane D. Sasser

This publication was originally produced by the Iowa State Cooperative Extension Service. It has been revised and made available in Louisiana by Diane D. Sasser, Ph.D., Assistant Specialist (Family Development); Rebecca E. White, Extension Associate (Family Development); and Raye T. Neely, Extension Associate (Family Development), Louisiana Cooperative Extension Service.

Louisiana State University Agricultural Center, William B. Richardson, Chancellor

Louisiana Cooperative Extension Service, Jack Bagent, Vice Chancellor and Director

Pub. 2799 - R

(2M)

7/00

Issued in furtherance of Cooperative Extension work, Acts of Congress of May 8 and June 30, 1914, in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture. The Louisiana Cooperative Extension Service provides equal opportunities in programs and employment.